When to call HOSPICE CARE PARTNERS

Is it time?

Hospice Care is "end-of-life" care that prioritizes the comfort and dignity of a person with a life-limiting illness who has chosen to not seek aggressive or curative treatment for their condition. Therefore, hospice strives to improve the quality of remaining life, not to lessen or to expend it.

If you or a loved one has been diagnosed with a life-limiting illness such as Alzheimer's, Dementia, Cancer, Liver Disease, Renal Disease, Neurological Conditions, ALS, MS, Parkinson's, COPD, or CHF, it might be time to learn more about hospice.

Although every person is different, those who have at least one life-limiting illness and a combination of the conditions below are likely to be appropriate for hospice services.

- increased hospitalizations or ER visits,
- unexplained weight loss,
- reduced mobility (i.e. chair or bed-bound),
- decrease in appetite or food and fluid intake,
- frequent skin tears/sores or recurring Infections
- loss of ability to bath, dress, eat, toilet, or transport themselves without assistance
